The Northern Lights

On March 13, 1989 the N.L. were seen in Leicestershire - some say - for the first time. I can assure you that this is not so. Way back in 1937 (when I was a very small boy) a sighting was made outside the Newbold Verdon County Primary School by a group of people attending Science As my late mother was attending these classes, I was there on that night and saw the

These classes were organised by the Revrd. Hugh Legge, fellow of Oxford University, who at that time was Rector of Newbold Verdon. The Tutor was a Professor Hogan - I can only remember the following people in the classes Alf Gilliver

I wonder if anyone else in the village has knowledge of these classes - a mother or father perhaps -
