Jan 5 . 1898.

I have already on several occasions given you written warnings but I beg you now to take special notice that this is the last warning you will receive

If you continue to punish the infants in improper ways — by striking them on the head, pulling their hair etc you must leave the school. We cannot allow you to remain any longer in charge of the children.

You know very well that we ought to have parted with you long ago. We were reluctant to do so for your own sake but I wish now to tell you plainly that, whether you can obtain any other employment or not, we shall be obliged to dismiss you if you do not alter your conduct.

I will ask Mrs Carter, before giving you this letter, to read it over to you this afternoon in the presence of the other teachers.

on behalf of the Managers

To Miss Gilliver.
