NOTES

(1) Unknown, but probably the Thomas who bought the house in 1775. Almost certainly Thomas Snr as the Land Tax Collector in the 1790's is written as Jnr. After 1800 when a Thomas is buried the Jnr is no longer used on the younger Thomas, who is almost certainly the man born in 1760 and who dies in 1818.

(2) Widow of Thomas who died in 1818.

(3) Thomas the later diarist who was born in 1805

[26]The relation between the costs here and the actual area obtained by the Award is (for a few selected cases):

† George Hood obtained 91 acres and bore 360. 0. 0 of the cost
Simon Oakden ,, 10 ,, ,, ,, 54. 0. 0. ,, ,,
Thomas Wraske ,, ¾ ,, ,, ,, 5. 0. 0. ,, ,,

The first thirty-two of these names are listed in the Award, and the other are the names of those who took the opportunity of exonerating their already-enclosed lands from tithe.

† Based on the examples here, Thomas Hargrave would probably have obtained at least 15 acres from the Commissioners.

On the 17th ult. Mr. William Birch, of the city of Litchfield, music master and organist, of Tamworth, aged 40 years.—He has left a widow and ten children to lament his loss.

On Wednesday se'nnight, about ten o'clock at night, a barn belonging to Mr. T. Hargrave, farmer, of Newbold, in this county, was discovered to be on fire, and notwithstanding every exertion made by the inhabitants to repress the raging element, the whole of the building, with its contents, consisting of a considerable quantity of oats, two carts, and all the implements in husbandry, amounting altogether to about 300l. were entirely destroyed. The public house and several cottages adjoining took fire, but were soon got under. It is not confidently known how the distressing circumstance originated, but as none of Mr. Hargrave's family had been on the premises for four hours preceding the conflagration, it is supposed to have been the act of some incendiary.

The sum of eleven pounds nineteen shillings and five-pence, has been paid into the hands of Messrs. J. Mansfield, and Co. being a Subscrip-
