The present Parochial School was built in 1875-1876 at a cost of £1201 including the site)
£1234

In 1884 the School was enlarged by addition to the South end at a cost £171.16.4
This sum was advanced by the Rector free of interest & paid back in instalments from Lord Crewe's Benefaction, if any remained after all expenses had been met In 1894 cloak rooms were provided at a cost of £70. This amount was also provided by the Rector & paid back in a similar way.
In 1904 three ventilators were fixed in the roof
& the school was painted, varnished & coloured throughout at a cost of £65.11.8.
This also was paid by the Rector & Sir Thomas Cope of Osbaston Hall. In 1910 the old gallery was removed at a cost of £50
In addition to the initial cost of the School £350 at least had been expended on enlargement & improvements

which did not cost one penny to the ratepayers

The Parish owes a great debt of gratitude to The Rev. W.G. Cole which he took in the School.

Extract from the Parish Magazine

Up to 1910
£1584

RK 141