Description of remains, precise location and stratification (attach plans if necessary)

The northern half of this field has been stripped and levelled by machine to prepare it for seeding with grass, the eventuall use being for a playing field.

The underlying geology is glacial sand and gravel.

The normal scatter of Med, late+post Med and modern pottery was found including:-
2 sherds Leics Sandyware
1 sherd white/grey fabric with pale green glaze.
Cistercian ware
'Tiger' ware
Midland Black
Pancheon and associated ware's

2 possible flint flakes were also picked up.

Conclusions

The pottery found represents what one would normally expect to pick up in a field close to a village.

The field will be down to permanent grass from this year so no further field work will take place.
