RK362 Aldyth Emmerson's Loose Press Cuttings Physical Archive
Circa 1985

Three headmasters: Mr Malcolm Mould, Mr Tom Greeves and Rev Harry Cadle celebrate the NV School 75th anniversary

LEICESTER MERCURY

Nervous moments for Sasha Hall and Andrew Suart as they have three headmasters looking at their work. Left to right: Mr. Mould, Mr. Cadle and Mr. Greeves.

Putting heads together

Three headmasters whose careers cover the past 50 years at Newbold Verdon Primary School got together for the school's 75th anniversary celebrations.

Mr. Malcolm Mould, head since 1972, was joined by the Rev. Harry Cadle, who was head from 1936 to 1964, and Mr. Tom Greeves, who was in charge from 1964 to 1971.

The two former headmasters were shown round the school by Mr. Mould who said: "I have never met either of them before but I've heard a lot about them."

During their visit Mr. Cadle and Mr. Greeves were interviewed by children conducting a study for an exhibition about the history of the school beginning on March 25.

Mr. Cadle said some of his fondest memories were of the maypole dances that used to be held at the school, while Mr. Greeves said he enjoyed school trips.